EDITORIAL

I honestly don't know where to start this month.

I know I've covered it before, but the sheer scale of the alleged (do I have to say 'alleged'?) injustice revealed by the Post Office debacle just keeps getting more and more jaw-droppingly astonishing. And then there's the £54 million (£54 million!!) benefit fraud perpetrated by a group of Bulgarians. How can so much money be paid out incorrectly?

Two different stories, and two different ways in which the relevant organisation handled their problem. The Department for Work and Pensions identified a problem and it was the work of their own fraud investigation section that resulted in the conviction of those found guilty. There we have it. The responsible entity recognised that they had a problem; they found the cause; then they set about solving it. Quite simple, really.

So, how did the Post Office deal with their issue? Again, it is quite simple; you deny the possibility of error, on your part, and hang the blame squarely on the shoulders of those less likely, or able to fight back. Even if those who carry the can are the least likely set of people to commit such an offence. Sub Postmasters are all strictly vetted to assess financial propriety and many of those accused had been doing the job for years with no suggestion of wrong doing. It appears that some senior leaders at the Post Office decided that the best way forward was to bully those unable to defend themselves. That they have been found out gives me some hope that the country hasn't gone completely to the moral dogs!

Cheers,

Mike

LOCAL BIRDS & WILDLIFE

Long-tailed Tit

Let's not start with creepy crawlies this month, let's get properly into the spirit of spring, with the chiff-chaffs yelling at the tops of their voices on the embankment and flowers bursting out all over the place (including Chinese Lanterns pushing up through my lawn, not so keen on that). There's something pretty creepy to come though ... but I will leave that until later.

Early in April, Lyn hosted a fashion show held by female pheasants in her garden, showing the in vogue plumage for this season, in various tasteful shades of brown with assorted patterns. She also reported a greenfinch on the niger seed "...

he sat on the feeder for quite a while – much more laid back than the other small birds that flit around. We also had a wagtail on the conservatory gutter, we could see him walking along from inside – now that's very unusual!". She has also had a pair of long-tailed tits feeding together, and I have seen a pair in my garden as well; the large groups of them that we see and hear calling to each other in winter have paired off and gone house-hunting.

In mid-April Janny and Barry reported that "Things are getting busy now with the migrants starting to come in. In the last month a lot more birds coming to our feeders, especially siskins – we have been seeing them every day. Yesterday we had two male bramblings in the garden together (photo 1), it's been a good year for both of these species.

"We have been to Tophill Low a few times this month and had some great days seeing the kingfishers (photo 2). It's well worth a visit especially this time of year with all the activity going on. Then further afield to Bempton, where we saw the firecrest (photo 3) the same day that we were at Scarborough seeing the red-necked grebe (photo 4). That was a very good day seeing two not so common birds. Looking forward to seeing more migrants in the next month!”

I am still getting the usual suspects in the garden, but I have just seen something I have never seen before, a wood pigeon ‘paddling’ as some birds do in order to get worms to rise to the surface. I always thought they were vegetarian, so I looked it up and they usually are, but do occasionally eat insects and worms. There again, I suppose it could have been a wildly optimistic effort to shake the ground in the hope that sunflower seeds would fall out of the feeder above ...

Now we come to the Strange Case of the Dismembered Limb (you might prefer to look away now!).

Pat reported that she had found three individual bird legs on her walk, one outside the school, one in the recreation field and one on Orchard Drive. She then brought one round in a plastic bag so we had a good look, photographed it and totally failed to identify its previous owner. It is also mystifying that there were three of them (unless a bird of prey picked one up and kept dropping it in front of her as she walked round!) So, any Sherlock Holmes who might be passing, have you seen a dog/sparrowhawk/misguided child carrying a severed bird’s leg around the village? Can anyone identify the species that has mislaid it? And I am very sorry to end with a gruesome photo, go back and look at the earlier ones to cheer yourselves up!

LOCAL HISTORY

Shops, Services and Businesses

We are focussing again this month on the recollections of Pam Linford. She was born in 1946 and has many memories of the village as it was in the 1950s and 1960s. Her account was written in the 2000s so many of the commercial premises mentioned below are now occupied by different businesses or householders.

Middleton, like all villages, had been completely self-contained with all trades and services catered for. When I was small some of the shops and trades had closed down, but some were left:

STATION ROAD

Coalman	Mr Wilf Soanes (house next to Anvil House)
Seamstresses	Misses Agatha and Clarice Towse (The White House)
Saddler	Mr Soanes (where Haystacks & Pickering Park are)
Joiner	Mr Lewis (where Betty and Roger Lowe live)
Blacksmith	Mr Dove, (behind Anvil House)
Fish and chip shop	Sybil and Cecil Milner – where the Chinese take away is. For a short time in the old saddlers shop – run by Mrs Burnett.

FRONT STREET

Haulage firm	Mr Massey (where the Industrial Estate is)
Building firm	Mr Eastwood (next to Fliss Primmer's house)
Cobbler	Mr Towse (Second cottage after the chapel)

CHURCH HILL

Piano teacher	Miss Moate (next house after Roger Soanes's)

FRONT STREET

Newsagents, tobacco, sweets, soft drinks etc	Mr Cliff (The Brailsford's house & Hairdressers was the shop. Mr Cliff also delivered all the papers)
--	---

Draper's shop	Part of the Co-op. Only opened 1 day a week when a lady from Driffield came to look after it. (Where the Post Office is)

Co-op shop	General stores (where the now-closed shop is) Mr Moate ran the shop with an assistant. Mr Moate delivered orders. I remember my mother making a list each week, and, I think Mr Moate delivered on Mondays.
General store	(The house next to the industrial estate going up Front Street.) Run by the Dixon family, and later by the Firth family. There were two houses, the one nearest to the industrial estate was the shop, and the family lived in the other one.
Small general store	In Station Road. After the Saddler's shop and house were sold Mr & Mrs Kirby and Ann (Dennis) moved in, and the front right hand room was a shop but only for a short time.
The Post Office	Just above Steel Walk. It was run by Mr & Mrs Noble until their retirement when it was moved to its present site. It consisted of two rooms – one behind the other – counter in the front room, all forms, etc in the back room Hazel Hutchings delivered the mail to the village. The mail was brought to the Post Office, sorted, and Hazel delivered it on her bicycle.

There were certain mobile shops that called regularly in the village.

Butcher	Eric Bradley from Lund (We had Mr Bradley, and he came on Saturday).
Butchers	Fred Foxtan from Kirkburn
Fishmonger	I can't remember where he came from
Ice Cream	Burgess Ice Cream came on Sunday and Tuesday evenings.

LAUNDRY - A laundry service operated from Driffield. Most people did not have washing machines and so this firm collected and returned laundry (in brown paper parcels, as I remember).

GARAGE - This was owned by Jack Soanes who was still running a taxi service when I was small. The garage provided car maintenance, petrol, and dealt with car sales. During the years the building was extended and improved.

The small one up, one down building next to the Post Office was where Jack Soanes started his business as a cycle maintenance shop. When he opened the garage he continued to use that building as a store house.

When Jack Soanes retired the closing of the garage with the loss of petrol sales was a great loss to the village. Richard Briggs only continued petrol sales for a short time.

RECREATION CLUB

Since the demise of the tennis club, the Recreation Club committee have been looking to make the best use of the grass courts that are now no longer used. We are happy to report that we have agreed to rent the courts out to Rogue Wolves, a dog training enterprise owned and operated by Leigh Foster, who lives in the village. Leigh has the training, experience and, reassuringly, the insurance to operate a professional and, more importantly, safe business.

So, what does this mean for you? Firstly, Leigh will have exclusive use of the grass courts, which will be locked to ensure the integrity of the training environment. He will be working mainly at the weekend and also on some evenings, but not on Thursdays. To be clear, this agreement only relates to the grass courts, and will not affect your use of the hard court, which will still be always available for your use.

As well as making best use of a now redundant village asset, this is also an opportunity to help a Middleton-based enterprise get off the ground and the Rec Club sees this as a win-win situation both for the village and for Leigh and his new business.

We want the village to be part of our celebrations and if you have any photos, memorabilia from ration books to uniforms and would be willing to loan these for the displays please get in touch with either Elizabeth or Vanessa on the numbers above. If you are a member of club in the village and you want to be part of our event why not give us a call to get involved.

MIDDLETON BOOK GROUP

April Books

“All the Light we cannot see” by Anthony Doerr

This is a moving and poignant story written from both sides of WW2. A French girl - blind from the age of 6 years and a sensitive German boy move towards each other throughout this powerfully written book through the beautiful imagery of Anthony Doerr's writing.

“The Last List of Mabel Beaumont” by Laura Pearson

This book was a lovely read - a beautiful, heartbreaking in parts but uplifting story of later life. After her husband, Arthur, dies Mabel realises she must track down her friend, Dot, from 30 years ago. She finds her true self by helping other people in her life to solve their problems.

June

New members are always welcome to our friendly and informal meetings where we discuss the chosen books, plus others we are reading, while enjoying coffee, cake and a chat. # CORRESPONDENCE

NEWS RELEASE 22nd March 2024

NEWS: Graham Stuart MP Graham Fighting for Middleton Bypass

Graham Stuart, Member of Parliament for Beverley and Holderness, attended a meeting in Middleton about resurrecting plans for a bypass.

Graham attended the meeting following discussions with Beverley Rural councillor Jeremy Wilcock (Lib Dem) about how the transformational £168 million Local Transport Fund could be spent.

Following the announcement of the fund by the Department for Transport, which includes a requirement to consult MPs on the spending plans, Graham is determined to put local priorities at the top of East Riding Council's list.

He has launched a survey to ask residents for their views on how the money should be spent, which has seen almost 200 responses so far.

Graham has also sought the views of parish council clerks across Beverley and Holderness to get a complete picture of what communities want from this extraordinarily huge sum of transport funding for our area.

The responses received so far include fixing pot holes and improving cycle routes, but also larger projects such as York to Hull Rail and bypasses.

Graham, alongside Lib Dem councillors Jeremy Wilcock and Diana Stewart, met Middleton-on-the-Wolds Parish Council to hear about their ambition to revive a bypass for the village, to deal with the numerous articulated lorries passing through the village every day.

The plans, created with the support of East Riding Council at the turn of the century, are detailed and thorough, showing a range of possible options. Graham is encouraging Middleton to form a committee to advance and update the plans and lobby East Riding Council to look again at their ideas, which were rejected due to no money being available in 2002.

A bypass would help reduce articulated lorries coming through the village, which often cause gridlock on Front Street and bring down bollards and even cause damage to buildings.

Several options were put forward twenty years ago, which members of Middleton-on-the-Wolds Parish Council showed Graham, Jeremy and Diana. They include smaller options which bypass Middleton only, and larger ones which take Bainton and North Dalton into account.

Residents of Beverley and Holderness can put their own ideas forward at www.grahamstuart.com/EastRidingTransportFund. Graham will present these ideas to Leader of the Council Anne Handley in the coming weeks.

Beverley and Holderness MP Graham Stuart said: “I’m delighted to have had the chance to go to Middleton-on-the-Wolds and hear the ambition for a bypass, as well as to see the problem for myself.

“Middleton has a great parish council, highly motivated to improve the lives of residents.

“That’s why I’m grateful to the village and to Cllr Jeremy Wilcock for inviting me to come and see the issue for myself, and I’m looking forward to working with the villagers, and cross-party with the ERYC councillors, to make sure these plans receive the attention they deserve in County Hall.

“Middleton matters, and I’m keen to help the village make the case for using the transformational £168 million Local Transport Fund to reduce heavy vehicles from the village.”

Beverley Rural Councillor Jeremy Wilcock (Lib Dem) said, “I’m pleased to have brought Graham to Middleton and even more pleased that he’ll support Middleton take its bypass plans forward.

“It’s wrong that these huge lorries are coming through Middleton on a daily basis, and I’m looking forward to working with Middleton Parish Council, Graham and my council colleagues to press the case for a bypass.”

We're investing in renewable energy to power the factory

We're pleased to share the news that we have invested in a 1648 panel solar array that will be installed on Kilnwick Road later this year. The solar installation will save the emission of 150 tonnes of CO<sub>2</sub> in its first year of operation and the predicted annual yield of 710,000kWh is sufficient to power 263 domestic homes. Did you know that an average family car using petrol and driving 11,500 miles/yr emits 4.6t of CO<sub>2</sub>/yr? The 150t CO<sub>2</sub> emission saving from our solar array is equivalent to taking 32 cars off the road. In addition, it takes 38 trees to offset 1t of CO<sub>2</sub> and the 150t CO<sub>2</sub> emission saving from our solar array is equivalent to planting 5,890 trees.

Scan the code with your phone to find out more about our sustainability initiatives.

At the start of April Kathmandu was again the most polluted city in the world, with an air quality index of 413. An index of below 50 is good, 200-300 is very unhealthy and 300 + is hazardous. For comparison, London is good at 21, Mumbai is unhealthy for sensitive groups at 112, Beijing weighs in at an unhealthy 171, and, as at 09.26 on 11th April, Leeds wins with an index of 4!

Kathmandu has improved down to a merely unhealthy 166 since this unenviable record was reached largely due to recent forest fires in the country. Unsurprisingly, the hospitals in Kathmandu have seen a surge in admissions for respiratory problems and a large increase in the number of Covid cases. Helpfully, the experts 'advise people to avoid exposure to pollution and wear face masks when venturing outdoors'.

This image is of the pollution almost hiding the Dharahara in Kathmandu. This famous 236ft tall tower in the centre of the city has been rebuilt since the devastating 2015 earthquake brought down the previous tower, which was built in 1835 as a military watchtower.

Bus travel in Nepal is always an experience. Unfortunately, all too often, a rather dangerous experience and busses do fall off mountains with a large loss of life quite frequently. Bus drivers seem to be in a class of their own when it comes to driving and below is a couple of examples. One ended up falling 20m off a mountain road onto the road below when the driver failed to negotiate a tight corner at speed. The driver and his one passenger were not badly injured. The second one is what some of these busses are really like. Not for the faint of heart.
