Have you captured a great image of the village? Drop it to us in an email for consideration for the cover!

The village benches are being repaired / refurbished by the Driffeld branch of the Men in Sheds group. They have been taped off to stop people using them until the work has been done.

Editorial

We had two elections, last month. One decided on councillors and new mayors' the other to elect a new pope. So, what did we get?

On the one hand, we got Leo XIV, an American pope who has challenged the anti-immigration policies of the United States and who has called for everyone, especially politicians, to “disarm communication of all prejudice and resentment, fanaticism and even hatred”. He has not, apparently, pleased the president!

On the other hand, the local elections were dominated by Reform UK who have a policy of achieving net zero immigration. Reform took seats off all three major political parties and who also had their candidates elected as mayors of the newly devolved authorities. In our case, Luke Campbell was overwhelmingly voted in as mayor of Hull and East Yorkshire.

Two quite divergent results, but what does it show? Can we reasonably compare a select group of privileged power brokers (let's face it, if you get to be a cardinal, you are a bit of player) with the electorate of a country like the UK? It might be comparing apples with oranges, but it might just show how disengaged the so-called movers and shakers of the world are from the man in the street.

Look at the USA, Trump was swept to power by people wanting to believe in his 'Make America Great, Again' policies and to hell with what people in other countries thought. The same policies have worked in previously liberal democracies like Italy, France and Germany – and here. The aforementioned man in the street has become fed up with what they see as discrimination against him and his peers in favour of immigrants and those benefitting from a 'woke' agenda.

And who is to say he, and all who think like him, are wrong? Whether you like it or not, the people have spoken, and it is maybe time for us all to listen.

Cheers, Mike

*Tea/ Coffee and toasted
teacakes or biscuits £3.50*

In addition there will be a raffle

To commemorate 80 years since VE Day on the 8th May we came together to host a lovely afternoon. We all enjoyed delicious cakes and chatted about old times. Some of us even dressed up!! The village green and front street was decked out with bunting as well as a beautiful tribute displayed on the Church bench.

Well done and thank you to everyone that helped from Church, Country Womens, Village Hall, Green Group and Rec Club - lovely afternoon. We raised £205.

Please support the village events and don't forget to buy your ticket for the Goovy 60's Dance on 14th June.

Local History

After the remembrance and celebration of the 80th anniversary of Victory in Europe (VE) Day, we wondered if any of our residents have village memories of the Second World War. We especially would like to hear any “passed on” memories of evacuees and prisoners of war.

Eileen Towse, who still lives in the village, has told us how her dad would “bunk-off” school to be with Italian POWs whilst Jenny Walker told us of the sing-alongs at the farmhouse!

Here are a few snippets from Geoff Wisher, whose hard work has revived many records of our village life:

- The army coming to Middleton added a new and often exciting dimension to village life, particularly for the young.
- Tom Soanes’ first reference to the Army presence was 18th September 1940: “Soldiers made a hole in granary” and his last on 20th February 1944 “Soldiers broke down gate posts and burnt gate, went into wheat field.”
- Tanks practiced manoeuvres through the local fields and a General took a salute on Front Street!
- Jack Bentley remembered the soldiers from France and Spain being “grand fellows” and recalls football matches at Huggate, after which they introduced the locals to wine and baguettes! A less fortunate incident however was when one crashed an armoured vehicle into the brick wall on the sharp bend on Station Road near the present takeaway.

Are you surprised to hear that the sharp bend on Station Road was causing problems even back then?!

Local Birds & Wildlife

Where have Barry and Janny been this month?

Since last month we have been going out fairly regular to various places. This year's Spring Migration hasn't been the greatest because of such mixed weather. As a result, we are not seeing a lot of the rarer birds that we would normally see but hoping the next few days of warmer weather might bring in many more - fingers crossed.

When visiting Bempton at least 6 of the more common Warblers have not let us down. That's the Chiffchaff, Willow Warbler (Photo 1) The Whitethroat (photo 2) and the Lesser Whitethroat (photo 3), – we were very pleased to spot these two who were sulking in the bushes as they are often very difficult to see. We have seen quite a few Sedge Warblers and Blackcaps here, but still can't get any decent photos - we will keep trying!!

The sea birds on the cliffs are now in full swing nesting and some have eggs. Great to see the Puffins back again. Bottlenosed dolphins are showing most days (photo 4) and a great attraction for the visitors.

We have had some really good days at Tophill Low; it's buzzing with small birds, butterflies, insects and large numbers of Swifts, Swallows and Martins, over the reservoirs as well as all the wild flowers. We always look forward to seeing the wild Orchids later on. It was nice to see the Avocets back again (Photo 5) and at the time of writing there are two nests. Another favourite of ours is back nesting again is the Little Ringed Plover (photo 6).

There are now a pair of Egyptian Geese (photo7) on site and hopefully they will breed. We are seeing a lot more of these around wetlands sites as year-long visitors. You can also see them at the Yorkshire Wildlife Trust nature reserve at North Cave. Hopefully we will have some more photos for you next month.

For those of you living in the village don't forget to look upwards to the sky as there are so many birds flying around, like Buzzards, Kites, Sparrowhawks as well as Swifts, Swallows, and House Martins.

Village Hall

Thankyou to all those who came to the VE Day drink and cake, it was good to meet up and be with friends. Our next big thing, which has been organised by the Village Events Committee, is the 60s evening in June which is in this newsletter and should be a good evening for those who belong to that era and those who just want good music, dance, dress up and laugh at those trying to twist and not quite as agile as we once were. So come along and join the fun.

We need a new FINANCE PERSON who is willing to look after the financial side of the village hall. If you are able or indeed know of anyone who would be an asset to the Village Hall Committee please ring Marie on 07835503918, or Sharon on 07359112264 we would love to have you on the committee. The Village Hall is a wonderful asset and needs to be kept. So come along and bring your expertise and enthusiasm.

Parish Council Chair's Report

Another year on and, unsurprisingly, many of the issues we have faced have been the same as previous years. Namely, traffic, parking and the state of the roads and footpaths in the village. Members of the public have raised many of the issues we have discussed and sought solutions for, especially the condition of the footpath on Beverley Road.

Instrumental in helping us to keep pressure on the county council has been the hard work of our ward councillor, Jeremy Wilcock. Jeremy has tirelessly chased up incident numbers to ensure that our needs don't get put on the back burner and I would like to give my personal thanks to him for his commitment to Middleton.

Last year, I talked about our shortage of parish councillors but now, happily, we are now only one councillor short of a full complement. This means that we, as a council, are better able to fulfil our work in maintaining the village. As well as welcoming the new members I would like to thank all the councillors for their work over the past year.

This time last year I announced my intention to stand down as chair and am happy to say that my replacement, Simon Hanna, is already in post. Simon has already introduced new ways of working to help us become an even more effective parish council and I hope that everyone will support him in his efforts to improve life in Middleton.

Which brings me to my final point. As with every year parish councillors have faced at best disdain, at worst insults, simply for doing their best, as volunteers, for the village. Feelings can sometimes run high simply because those of us who get involved care strongly about what happens in Middleton. Now, not everybody will agree with the priorities the council chooses but we don't take decisions without discussion. Of course, if you would like to influence that discussion, you could always become a parish councillor!

NIGELLA RASPBERRY BAKEWELL TRAYBAKE

One of my favourite treats growing up was a simple Mr Kipling Cherry Bakewell. Just one taste of that sweet almond and pastry cake transports me right back to the days of 4pm after school snacks. As I've got older, unfortunately a daily Cherry Bakewell hasn't suited my "healthy eating" lifestyle and I've continually grown less and less fond of the cherry flavour. You can therefore imagine the joy that bestowed me when I received a Nigella Lawson cook book with a Raspberry version! Now if there's ever a jar of raspberry jam in my cupboard, you can be sure there will be a traybake sitting on the kitchen side 2 hours later. —Elizabeth

Prep time – 30 minutes

Baking time – 45 minutes

Ingredients

For the base:

225g plain flour

60g icing sugar

Pinch of salt

225g unsalted butter (softened)

For the filling:

150 g unsalted butter (softened), plus some for greasing

4 eggs

150g caster sugar

150g ground almonds

250g seedless raspberry jam

250g fresh raspberries

50g flaked almonds

Method

1. Preheat the oven to 180 c, line your tin with foil and grease it.
2. The base needs to be cooked first so mix together the flour, icing sugar, salt and butter in a processor until you have a well-formed dough. Take it out and knead it together a little before pressing it into the bottom of your tin. Don't panic – it may not look like much but with a little love and attention it will fill out. If you need to, work the dough in with your knuckles to get an even surface.
3. Once satisfied, bake the base for 20 minutes then leave to cool in the tin for around 5 minutes.
4. While the base is cooking, melt the 150g butter for the filling in a small pan and allow to cool.

5. Combine the eggs, caster sugar and ground almonds into a food processor and blitz till you have a paste. Whilst the motor is still running, slowly pour the cool melted butter down the funnel until it's all mixed together.
  6. Then onto the jam. You're more than welcome to take it straight from the jar to save on washing up, but whisking it together in a bowl makes it much easier to spread.
  7. With your cooled base, lovingly spread the jam all over, followed by the fresh raspberries. Then scrape the almond filling out of the processor and pour over the raspberry layer.
  8. Finally, decorate with a sprinkle of flaked almonds and bake for about 45 minutes. It's ready to come out when it has a gentle puffiness and is golden brown.
  9. Leave to cool a little before slicing. It's most delicious served a little warm with ice-cream

Celebrating a Chairman's Award shortlist and BRCGS success

The team at Church Hill Farm are celebrating not one, but two pieces of exciting news this month!

Firstly, the team has reached the final of the prestigious East Riding of Yorkshire Council's Chairman's Awards in the Business with over 51 employees category. To reach the final, we had to submit a nomination detailing what we have done to support our community and to enhance the social well-being of the area.

The ceremony varies between communities. In Hindu cultures, the ceremony is carried out by a Brahmin priest and the rituals symbolize Lord Ram's banishment. In Buddhist communities, it represents the boy's abandonment of worldly pleasures and his transition to a monk (symbolization of Buddha's withdrawal from earthly pleasures).

The boy is made to recite sacred phrases known as Gayatri Mantra, which are kept secret. He is then presented with a Janai (sacred thread) draped around his shoulder to signify that he is now a man and is ready to take on family responsibilities.

Bratabandha, or the Sacred Thread ceremony, is a Hindu ceremony in which boys take their first steps in learning the customs, roles, and rituals of their caste. It is a sacred event for Hindus and is a very important event in a boy's life and regarded as the start of manhood in Nepal. A male cannot marry until he has undergone his Bratabandha. The ceremony is performed in an odd numbered age of the boy and takes between 1 and 3 days to complete.

New clothes and on the way to the temple.

Day two and the family photo.

In certain Hindu groups, the head is shaved, except for a patch of hair (Choti) tied with a string by the priest, indicating a purification from old lifestyles, warding off evil spirits and blessing the child with good health, long life, and prosperity. After bathing, new clothing is donned and the whole gathering processes to the local temple during which time the boy tries to run away but he is guarded by his senior maternal uncle and prevented from leaving his family.
